Expansion Plans

Our future plans are no different than our past, where we had enhanced our capacities and sales manifolds, keeping in view the growing needs of our customers, we have been able to vertically integrate more than ever before.

In very near future our plan is to double our stitching capacity, including our quilting set up. Other future expansion plans include a garment washing unit and a flat bed printing.

Behind all this the focus point is to create a seamless interface throughout the manufacturing process addressing delivery, cost and quality issues by providing the right product the first time, and at the right time.

Lead time follow up from order placement to delivery of goods to the customer is the focal point of our growth as well as our expansion plan. With extensive investment into system right from order taking and procurement through to production and delivery, efficient planning is being done to achieve better lead times to the satisfaction of the ever growing customer demand.

Nak'lah wear places the highest emphasis on manufacturing its products with consistency by incorporating efficient and flexible process to ensure customer satisfaction.

Total quality management is achieved through effective control and continuous improvement of every process.
